Chatham

Chatham 3 stone water jet mosaic shown in Driftwood and Calacatta Tia honed.

For 3000 years, nomads, traders, armies, and pilgrims have travelled the Silk Road,thousands of miles of routes that connect Europe to India to China and Japanexchanging not simply silk and other luxuries but philosophical and artistic influences,the very highest visions of what a civilization could be.
It is no exaggeration to say that the Silk road laid the foundations for modernity as we know it .
Travelling the same route and blending our own ideas of modern taste with both theindigenous materials of Eurasia and design elements from many traditions has created our Silk Road range, a collection that brings us home, distilling our own pilgrim ages into steps on the path of our design odyssey.
Here, our Silk Road collection is presented in a simplified palette for “clean slate”. The stone colours utilised in this collection are only Thassos, Calacatta, Carrara, Bardiglio, and Nero Marquina, enabling clients to easily imagine the thousands of colour combinations New Ravenna can render in both stone and glass.
